JUL -9 1921

Six weeks before the big race, Dusty Rhoades retires as pilot for the Renade car, he having promised old Pat MacMurrin the Pakre manufacturer, whose daughter, Virginia, is seen to be his bride, that he will race no more. MacMurrin and Hellis of the Renade Company are trying to land an order from a South American dealer, who is in the city.

On the day of the wedding, Hellis passes Dusty and MacMurrin. Dusty speeds up his limousine, and passes Hellis, but lands in a ditch. MacMurrin calls the wedding off, but Dusty elopes with Virginia in a racing car.

At the first small town Dusty and his pursuer, MacMurrin, are arrested and jailed. The Renade faction stages a serenade to force a quarrel between Dusty and the girl's father, hoping Dusty will then drive the Renade car in the race.

After serving ten days in jail, Dusty discovers the motive for the trick and determines to get a car and beat Renade in the race. With Virginia acting as salesman, he buys a discarded Pakre racing car which stands in MacMurrin's basement and gets Jimmy Redman, a mechanic whom Zecker, a Renade driver had injured by foul play in a past race, to act as his mechanic.

On the day of the race, MacMurrin discovers the Pakre car is missing, rushes to the race field and learns Dusty has made a post-entry, but he cannot interfere as the car legally belongs to Dusty. The race starts and Dusty and Jimmy crawl up from sixth place to second place and then pass Zecker, the Renade driver and gain a lap.

Dusty puts Jimmy in the pilot's seat so he can have the satisfaction of beating Zecker. Pat observes this and is pleased. The Pakre wins and the South American dealer offers a big order to MacMurrin. Dusty appears on the scene and tells the South American that they will accept the order if he will order an equal number of Pakre trucks. The latter agrees, Dusty takes Virginia in his arms and old Pat smiles approval.
